

Alladin

A man called Alladin lived with his old mother in China. They were very poor, they had no food, no money and lived in a small, broken and dirty house.

When Alladin went to the forest to find food, a man came to him and said, "I'll give you a magic ring but you have to work for me." Alladin had never seen a real magic ring before so he said, "I will work for you." The man said, "You have to go a cave and find an old lamp for me." Alladin found the lamp and thought that he could be richer if he didn't give it to the old man. But the old man was bad and would not let Alladin out of the cave because Alladin kept the lamp. But Alladin didn't want to listen to his orders. He got out of the cave with the help of a genie in the magic lamp. Alladin and his mother became rich because he became the master of the lamp genie.

One day in the market, Alladin saw Jasmine, whom he wanted to marry. Jasmine was the Emperor's daughter. So with the help of the lamp genie, the Emperor agreed to the marriage. Alladin and Jasmine lived in a big castle together. One day, the bad old man came to the castle and asked, "Lady, do you have any old lamps?"
