Fortune Cookie

At a Chinese restaurant, Martin opens his fortune cookie and reads the following message: "Your life is in danger. Say nothing to anyone. You must leave the city immediately and never return. Repeat: say nothing."

Martin is so angry about people putting this kind of message inside the cookie, it definitely gives him a bad start of a day. So he did not eat the cookie and he just pushed it into his pocket.

After that, he ordered a set lunch including an apple cake, a bowl of fried rice, and a cup of juice. As for dessert, he ordered a lucky cake to make him feel lucky again.

After he finished eating and paying for the lunch, he left the restaurant and went to the manufacturer of Fortune Cookies. He wanted to tell manager that it was bad to put these words in fortune cookies, but the manager was out eating lunch, so Martin had to wait for a while.

When Martin saw the manager, he wanted to tell him, but there were some policemen outside the door. The police stopped Martin from telling the manager that they were not supposed to put such bad saying in the cookies. So Martin went home.

The next day, he went to the manufacturer again. This time, the manufacturer was closed. Martin then went to the Police Station. A police officer told him that he should not come to the Police Station to tell them about the fortune cookie. So Martin went home by MTR.

When Martin got home, there was a knock on the door. When he opened the door it was a ghost. Martin screamed and stepped back, he fell into a deep hole.

"Wake up, Martin!" someone shouted, and the person who shouted was his mum. Martin laid on his bed awake and found out that it was only a dream.

"Wake up! You are late for school!" His mum shouted again. Martin quickly woke up, brushed his teeth, changed into his uniform, ate his breakfast and rushed to school.
